FEES: Our fees for most cases and projects are based on the time value of the work performed on the assignment. The time value of work performed is the product of the time spent on the matter by each attorney and legal assistant, and the hourly rate assigned for work performed by that individual. The firm's billing unit is one-tenth of an hour (i.e., six-minute increments). The firm's hourly rates are reviewed and adjusted from time to time and accordingly may change during the course of our representation. Any such changes will be applicable in determining the time value of work performed on a matter from the date they become effective. However, no such change will be made without prior notice to and consent of our client.

Our attorneys bill for the time they spend traveling if work is actually being performed for the client or when it is not feasible to be working for the client or others. Our attorneys may also bill for a portion of the time spent traveling during which work is not performed, particularly if the travel is outside of normal business hours in order to meet the scheduling requirements of clients or others.

In some situations, we have entered into arrangements with a client under which we charge for our services based on considerations other than, or in addition to, the time value of our services. For example, we have accepted certain cases on a contingency fee or a fixed fee basis, and we have also accepted certain matters with the express understanding that a premium will be charged for our services because of the unusual demands of the project, the efficiency with which the work is performed or the results we achieve. Our policy is to require that any such special arrangement be set forth in writing.

Hourly Rates:

Scott G. Leong	$195.00 to $225.00 per hour
Gary N. Kunihiro	$195.00 to $225.00 per hour
Paul A. Brooke	$195.00 to $225.00 per hour
Christine J. Kim	$175.00 to $200.00 per hour
Associates:	$125.00 to $175.00 per hour
Paralegal/Legal Assistant:	$75.00 to $100.00 per hour

COSTS: In addition to fees for services, the firm charges separately for certain costs incurred and for disbursements made by it in connection with each representation. These include such items as charges for certain internal services performed by the firm, such as for photocopying (at 15 cents per page), as well as charges to reimburse our firm for disbursements made to third parties, such as filing fees, long-distance telephone charges (including long distance faxes), postage, court reporters, travel expenses (including air fare at coach rates and a rental car), courier charges, and other disbursements made on the client's behalf. Invoices for costs incurred to third parties on a client's behalf may be forwarded to the client for direct payment, rather than being paid by the firm and reimbursed by the client. When substantial expenses are anticipated, the firm may require that monies to cover those expenses be advanced. For certain types of expenses, such as telephone toll charges and shipping/courier/freight expenses, a client may not be billed on a current basis, since there may be a delay by the provider in billing our firm for these expenses.

Our firm may engage the services of outside consultants (such as expert witnesses, translators, appraisers and engineering firms) to facilitate its representation of a client's interests, and may advance their fees and disbursements or have them billed directly to the client. Regardless of how the billing arrangements are established, the client remains ultimately responsible for the payment of the fees and disbursements of such outside consultants.
